

MILLENNIUM MESSAGE DELIVERED AT A WORLD PEACE GATHERING

By Reverend Deborah Ann Bourbon, R.N.

We stand at the threshold of a new world. As we look forward into our future we realize that we are all co-creators. We have made the decision that this event, that we call "the millennium" is an important window of opportunity for us. Through the energy of thought, vast numbers of people have created a "charge" on this event. Some anticipate great changes hovering about this date, on the verge of manifestation. This could be the beginning of a new "Golden Age". There are predictions of earth changes and others of great shifts in consciousness. There are also those who are filled with fear, having relinquished their power, replacing it with paranoid ideas, crippling scenarios and hopeless situations. Movies and television produce fear-filled dramas. Some capitalize on the event by using scare tactics to advertise the products we MUST have to survive the unknown dangers awaiting us. On a positive note, Billy Graham says, "the Beginning is near." In the Muslim world the Great Pyramid is planned to be recapped, in celebration of the millennium. A cacophony of energy swirls about this event. The empowered, the frightened; those looking forward, those reaching back; it seems that everyone has their own view, their own insight on the importance of this event.

Let's look at this event. It is A millennium, but not THE millennium. To the majority of our sisters and brothers on this planet, it's not an important date on their calendars. When I went to see the Dali Lama this summer, someone asked him about the millennium. His response was, "Sun goes up, sun goes down, stars come out, it's another day." However, this date, January 1st, 2000, has been MADE important. All the ideas and opinions that I have mentioned have something very much in common. They are not as different as they would appear on the surface. They are all charges of energy focused on a specific event in time, and event that we are all about to live. Millions of people, with their emotional concerns of good or ill, have put an energetic charge, an enormously powerful thought-form, out in front of all of us, anchoring it to this date. Long ago, in ages past, people looked towards these times sensing the importance of travelling through this moment. And here we are, about to move through that energy field. How exciting!

It is this energy, waiting on our doorstep that makes this 14th World Peace Day so important. We are about to dive into a barrage of emotional energy. Let us consider how important it is for us to be clear light workers as we navigate these next few hours. We all know that energy cannot be created or destroyed. Let us remind ourselves though that it CAN be directed or channeled, if we keep ourselves free from being caught up in the currents. This is where we all play a most relevant role this morning. Through maintaining a non-judgmental, detached focus, we can be as a clear lens, funneling this diverse emotional cloud into a resonant chord for world peace. As we rise above the emotional self and connect with our Higher Natures, we can maintain a clarity and a purpose for our combined work today.

Everyone on planet Earth will be moving through this intensely charged emotional event. Since, under Universal Law, "Like attracts like" or "Thought begets form", some will subject themselves to their own self-fulfilling prophecies, for good or ill. We have not gathered together this morning to feed into this dance but rather to be the instruments to create the forward momentum this energy provides when handled with Higher Guidance and direction. Remember that we are all manifesters, we are all co-creators. This is the morning when we put our personal issues to the side and take up the role as lightworkers and servants to the cause of World Peace. We are all able to do this or we would not even be here today. When God presents the opportunity it shows that we are prepared.

Of all the World Peace Days, this is the one where we have an abundance of free energy to direct towards our goal. We don't have to build it up amongst ourselves and send it out. The energy is there, waiting to be harmonized, focused, molded, and directed. This is a high point in our work together. This is an opportunity to join together and selflessly give to create a positive use for this potent event. Please remember that as you leave here today, the work is ongoing. Be of a clear focus and an open heart as you take your gift and move through these times, ever providing a channel for World Peace to be anchored into this physical plane. Bless you my sisters and brothers. It is a great joy to serve with you.

Note: This message was delivered at a World Peace Day Celebration by Rev. Deborah Ann Bourbon, R.N. World Peace Day is December 31. On that day at noon Greenwich (6 am. St. Louis Time) people gather the world over to pray for world peace. Wherever you are on that day, at that time, please add your energy to this most worthwhile event.
Also, the Great Pyramid did not get recapped.
